10 Marcus D. BRICENO,

11 Plaintiff,

12 v.

13 Blake WILLIAMS, San Diego Police
14 Officer, et al.,

15 Defendants.
16

Case No.: 16-cv-1665-JAH-AGS

REPORT AND RECOMMENDATION TO DENY PLAINTIFF'S MOTION
TO AMEND (ECF No. 44)

17 In his complaint, plaintiff Marcus Briceno claimed that the two defendant police
18 officers used excessive force in arresting him. In his current motion, Briceno alleges that,
19 because he refused to plead guilty, the defendants and the District Attorney retaliated by 20 convicting him of three more unjustified criminal charges. He seeks to amend his complaint
21 to add new claims arising from these three additional convictions.

22 Yet these convictions have not been overturned, so Briceno is legally prohibited
23 from using this civil suit to collaterally attack those criminal charges. See Heck v.
24 Humphrey, 512 U.S. 477, 487 (1994). Thus, the proposed amendments to his complaint
25 are futile, and his motion to amend should be denied.

26 BACKGROUND

27 According to Briceno, on September 19, 2013, defendants grabbed, pushed, yanked,
28 punched, and hauled him by his neck while arresting him. (ECF No. 1, at 3.) Briceno was

1 rendered unconscious and had to be treated at a hospital. (Id. at 4.) He was charged with 2 resisting an executive officer, assault and battery, and threatening an officer, and
3 presumably convicted. (ECF No. 29, at 1; ECF No. 35, at 7.) Ever since his 2013 arrest,
4 Briceno has been in continuous custody. (See ECF No. 44, at 1-2.)

5 He now seeks to amend his complaint to bring additional claims against defendants.
6 (See generally ECF No. 44, at 1-2.) He alleges that defendants and the District Attorney
7 “file[d] 3 more cases on [him]” because Briceno “refused to sign any deals from the D.A.”
8 (Id. at 3.) He believes he was “maliciously targeted” but nevertheless “was convicted on 9 all 3 cases.” (Id.) So, he seeks leave to add additional claims, and increase his damages,
10 due to the “false imprisonment” he faced due to the retaliatory charges. (Id.)

11 DISCUSSION

12 At this stage, a litigant must receive Court leave to amend. But such leave should be 13 “freely” granted “when justice so requires.” Fed. R. Civ. P. 15(a)(2). “However, ‘liberality 14 in granting leave to amend is subject to several limitations,’” including “futility.” Cafasso
15 v. Gen. Dynamics C4 Sys., Inc., 637 F.3d 1047, 1058 (9th Cir. 2011) (citation omitted). A
16 proposed amendment is futile if “the amended [claims] would be . . . subject to dismissal.”
17 Steckman v. Hart Brewing, Inc., 143 F.3d 1293, 1298 (9th Cir. 1998).

18 In his opposition, defendant Blake Williams¹ argues that allowing Briceno to amend
19 would be futile because the Heck doctrine bars Briceno from succeeding on his claim.
20 Despite having an opportunity, Briceno did not respond to Williams’s argument. (See ECF
21 No. 48 (requiring Briceno to file any reply brief by February 26, 2019).)

22 In Heck v. Humphrey, 512 U.S. 477 (1994), the Supreme Court made clear that
23 convicted criminals may not use civil-rights lawsuits under 42 U.S.C. § 1983 to indirectly
24 challenge their convictions. Such suits present federal courts with a simple question: Would 25

26 ¹ Despite this case pending for nearly three years, Briceno has not served defendant
27 Chris Cummings, and Cummings has not appeared in this action. (Compare ECF No. 22 28 (certificate of service for Williams); with ECF No. 8 (unexecuted summons return for Cummings).)

1 the lawsuit's success "'necessarily imply' or 'demonstrate' the invalidity of the earlier
2 conviction or sentence"? Smith v. City of Hemet, 394 F.3d 689, 695 (9th Cir. 2005)
3 (en banc) (citations omitted). If so, the suit is barred, "unless the plaintiff can demonstrate 4 that the conviction or sentence has already been invalidated." Heck, 512 U.S. at 487.

5 Despite being convicted, Briceno claims that he "never commit[t]ed a crime," has 6 been subject to "false imprisonment" due to the convictions, and that the new cases were
7 "false charges." (ECF No. 44, at 1-2.) If he were to prove those allegations and thereby
8 receive damages, his civil suit would "necessarily imply" that those convictions were 9 invalid. See Smith, 394 F.3d at 695. This is precisely what Heck prohibits. Thus, any 10 amendment to include those claims is futile, at least until he shows that the convictions
11 have been invalidated. See Cooper v. Ramos, 704 F.3d 772, 785 (9th Cir. 2012) (noting 12 that a request to amend would be "futile" where the new claim "is precluded by Heck").

13 CONCLUSION

14 Because Heck precludes Briceno's proposed new claims, his motion to amend
15 should be DENIED as futile. Within 14 days of service of this report, the parties must file
16 any objections to it. See 28 U.S.C. § 636(b)(1). The party receiving such an objection has 17 14 days to file any response. Fed. R. Civ. P. 72(b)(2).
